NATIONAL OPERA.

THE GREAT OPERA SEASON BRILLIANTLY OPENED.

The Hazard Pavilion Crowded with a Superb Audience—The Opera of "Lakme" and Its Presentation— Interview with Manager Locke.

The greatest season of opera that the ambitious city of Los Angeles has ever known was inaugurated last evening at Hazard's PavHion, in the presentation of Lakene by the National Opera Company, composed of 305 persons. Long before the doors were opened the crowd began to gather, and when they did swing to admit the waiting throng, it surged forward with a force that carried the ticket-takers before it, and for a few minutes it seemed as if nothing could arrest the rush. But the door card-takers, by exerting all their strength and urging The greatest season of opera that the am by exerting all their strength and urging the eager multitude, brought it under con-trol, and the people streamed in by thou-sands till all the seats in the vast auditorium were occupied rol, and the people streamed in by thousands till all the seats in the vast auditorium were occupied.

The seating arrangement of the Pavilion is ex cellent for an entertainment of this kind, the seats, both in the body and galleries, rising tier by tier, so as to afford a good view from all parts of the house.

The great majority of the ladies, in accordance with the suggestion of The Times, had doffed their high hats, which was a material convenience to those behind them. Near the close of the opera, General Manager Charles E. Locke was found by a Times reporter in the lobby, and being asked what he thought of the building in general, he replied:

"We find the arrangements very satisfactory. The seats are well placed to accommodate the audience, and the acoustic properties of the house are quite good—better, perhaps, than might be expected in such a structure as this."

"Do you find the stage of sufficient size for your large company?"

"Yes, it answers every purpose, and even if it did not, our company can adapt themselves to the size of the stage, so no one would perceive the need of room."

"You came in today over the Southern Pacific. It would interest people to know how you travel with such a large number of persons."

"Our train was in three sections. The

"Our train was in three sections. The first contained the ballet, numbering 92 persons, the chorus of 100 persons, and the technical department. The second section contained the artists, the Thomas orchestra of 60 persons, and the executive staff. The third section contained most of our bagrage."

The third section contained most of our baggage."
"You must have a good load of baggage?"
"We carry one hundred tons altogether. It requires nineteen cars to transport it. We occupy thirty-one cars for our company and baggage. We carry our own physician, and Mr. Jones, who was for seven years on the staff of the New York Herald, is press agent for the company."
"If it is a fair question, Mr. Locke, what are your daily expenses?"
"Yes, sir, it is fair, and I don't mind telling you that it costs us $3500 per day to keep going."

ing you that it costs us $2500 per day to keep going."

"This is your first visit to Los Angeles?"

"Yes. We spent a month in San Francisco. The season there was very good and we were well pleased with the result. That place and this are the only two places west of the Rocky Mountains where we give our operas. We go from here to Kansas City, opening there next Monday evening."

"Do you consider this a good house?"

"Oh, ves: especially for the first night. Tomorrow evening the opera of Lohengrin will show off the strength of the company to better advantage. We give American opera, and every artist singing tonight is American-born. Tomorrow evening, however, the same artists will not sing. Others will take their places."

LAST NIGHT'S AUDIENCE.

LAST NIGHT'S AUDIENCE. audience which filled the Pavilion last night was representative of the best of Los Angeles. Nearly every family of standing in the city had representatives there. It is therefore quite needless to enter into a list of those present—the space being available for much more interesting news. It was a cultivated, handsome and finely-dressed audience, and very appreciative of the superb operatic production to which it was treated. ast night was representative of the best of

THE PLAY.

A Critical Review of "Lakme" and Its Production.

The opening night of the National Opera Company was emphatically a great success. So much had been said about this great organization that popular expectation was naturally wound up to great pitch, and for once the performance came fully up to the promise. The opera of Lakme is not a great work, but it contains, in charming combination, many of the elements which go to make a success of the first order. It is full make a success of the first order. It is full of soft, sensuous movement and delicate airs that seem to breathe the spirit of romance around the stern old Brahmins, the dancing bayaderes and the ill-fated "Lakine," whose love passage with the too fascinating English officer has such a sad termination.

Pauline L'Allemand is an ideal representative of the leading character, and her first entrance was greeted with a natural enthusiasm, inspired by her graceful attitude as she stood attired in the picturesque Hindu costume, and with face, neck and arms stained of the dusky hue appropriate to the character, the masses of black hair falling over her shoulders, and her large, dark, lustrous eyes turned upward in religious ecstasy.

The scenery of the entire three acts was of the best; the examples of oriental architecture in the second act were excellent, and the jungle scene, with its forest of tail trees and interlacing branches, through which the sky could be faintly seen, was a wonderfully charming set.

which the sky could be faintly seen, was a wonderfully charming set.

The correctness of detail, which is the pride of the management, is worthy of remark, but on the point of costume the British officers were "off." William H. Lee, with his parade sash, looked more like a Knight of Pythias than an officer in Her Britannie Majesty's service.

The orchestra was under the direction of Gustav Hinrichs, and it goes without saying that it was worthy of every word of commendation that has been uttered about it. Criticisms have been made to the effect that the orchestra is made superior to the singers, and, to a certain extent, drowns their voices, and while this was noticeable in a few passages, it was only when the singers were not equal to the demands of the occasion.

The performance, as a whole, appeared to give unbounded satisfaction.

Tonight's Performance.
Tonight will be the only Wagner night of the opera season, and an immense audience will no doubt be in attendance to hear the the opera season, and an immense audience will no doubt be in attendance to hear the performance of Lohengrin. It was in the production of this great work in the first season of American opera that the National Opera Company, according to the verdict of the entire eastern press, was declared to be entitled to rank with any grand opera company in Europe for brilliant operatic achievements. The splendid chorus of 100 volces and the unrivaled Thomas orchestra will be heard with grand effect in the stirring ensembles of Wagner's opera, while the cast is decidedly a strong one, bringing before this public a number of excellent attists, some of whom are as famous in Europe as in this country. Bertha Pierson, who takes the part of "Elsa," is said to be one of the finest dramatic sopranos of the day, and Cornelia Van Zanten has made a distinguished success this season as "Ortrud." William Candidus, the famous tenor, will make his first appearance here as "Lohengrin," Myron Whitney, the great basso profundo, will be heard as the "King," and William Ludwig, who is said to be one of the finest baritones of the present day, will take the part of "Telramund." The opera is sumptuously mounted, and as an operatic spectacle is one of the finest evergiven in this country.

Tomorrow night there will be a notable production of Gounod's ever-popular opera. Faust, which will be given here for the first time in its entirety. This is said to be incomparably the most complete and elaborate representation of Faust ever given in this country. Emma Juch will be heard for the first time here as "Marguerite," in which part she recently created such an immense success in San Francisco. Jesse Bartlett Davis is a highly attractive "Siebel," and Mathilde Phillips, Messrs, Bassett, Ludwig and Stoddard are also in the cast.

In for the Opera.

The grand operatic season opening last night brought in a large number of people from the surrounding towns. The following were registered at the leading hotels yesterday:

No Judicial Sympathy for Becussed Mules.

C. Duhem, a conductor on the Secondterday morning by Officer Dalton, on a war-rant charging him with disorderly conduct. It seems that Sunday afternoon Duhem was coming over the hill with a load of pas-sengers, and his car was about to run into a mule team, when he ordered "down brakes," and the little train came to a standstill. and the little train came to a standstill. Duhem jumped to the street and approached the mules. He discovered that they were tied to a hitching-post, but tied so long that they were able to push the wagon into the middle of the street, and its hind wheels rested on the track. The conductor carefully approached the head of the sleepy-looking mules, and in a "Christian manner," as he puts it, attempted to pull them up, so his car could pass. They couldn't see it in that light, and the conductor began to work his right boot in the neighborhood of the off mule's oats-basket. He used strong language during this operation, and a lady who happened to be on the car thought some law was being broken, so she marched down to the police station and swore out a complaint against the conductor. The case was taken before Justice Austin, and after hearing the evidence he dismissed the defendant, as he could not see that he kicked and swore in a malicions manner.

The Jim Ash case was called for pre-liminary examination in Justice Austin's court yesterday afternoon. THE Oakland Tribune thinks that "without a San Francisco connection the great Atchison system would be forever a cripple in the railroad race.' Conceding the point for argument, th Atchison is a mighty healthful cripple and seems to be making amazing time with its halting gait. THAT a city of the size of Los An -and particularly one situated in a semi-tropical climate-should have remained so long without swimming baths is a reproach and a wonder. Such an establishment is of untold sanitary value. It is gratifying that some one has at last had the enterprise to make a start in this matter. Fred Harkness yesterday put before Council a petition to be allowed to use water from one of the zanjas for a bath-house. He is amply backed, and proposes to erect a building to cost not less than $30,000, generous in its details, with a swimming bath 100 feet long, hot-water baths and all other conveniences proper to a first-class establishment of the sort. If built it will have a central location. Such a move deserves hearty encourThe World's Musical Adva

In the midst of the general musics enthusiasm now prevailing in Los An-geles consequent upon the presence in our midst of the great American Opers Company, it may not be uninteresting to the readers of THE TIMES to take cursory grance at music in its infancy, in order to more fully realize the advance that the race has made in this epartment since the beginning.

Probably most of THE TIMES' reader are familiar with the ancient legend which relates to the story of man's nent from Paradise, and says that the angels, pitying his grief, took some of the wood from the Tree of Life and wrought out for him a harp whose music should soothe and comfort him in his hours of sorrow, and be a source of delight to him in his happie noments. The ancients were lovers of nusic, and rude instruments were known to them even in the earlies days. The Orientals did not regard music as an art of human invention. They attributed it to some of the many whom they worshiped. Th divinity of music was recognized by them, and its power over the savage heart in the world's young days was not less soothing than it is today.

In that oldest of all histories, which goes back to the "beginning," we find the following in the fourth chapter of Genesis, in reference to Jubal, the son of Lamech: "He was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ.'
This is the first historical mention we have of musical instruments. But this is in the very morning of the world's history, before the story of Eden had begun to grow old. Thus we see that stringed and wind instruments are almost coeval with the race. But, beyond doubt, they were rude and imperfect in construction, embodying hardly more than the idea of harmony which is so fully realized in the more complete and perfect instruments of today. But even then man's hand was feebly stretched out after inventions to satisfy his innate love of harmonious sounds That want of his nature was thus early in search of something that should minister to it and satisfy it. It is not culture that creates this want; the love of music is as inherent in man's nature as the love of his own offspring. Civilization gives the power to gratify this natural love for music, and enlarges our discriminative and appreciative powers. The tombs of ancient Egypt which have been explored within the past few years, have revealed many interesting facts in regard to the musical instruments of the early Egyptians. Hieroglyphics tell the story of that people's familiarity with musical science. Some of their representations date back 3000 years before the Christrian era. From the sepulcher of their pipes and their flutes. Here the primitive bow-shaped harp has given place to the triangular form, about six feet in height, with twelve or thirteen strings-seven strings more than belonged to the original instrument. From a Thebian tomb we get still further light on the musical history of the young world's days. There was a picture found in this tomb of two women playing upon lutes, instruments showing much greater skill in construction than the primitive harp, and the period in Egyptian history when the Israelites were there in bondage and is supposed to be about the time when Joseph was ruler in the land. The pneumatic organ also was of Egyptian construction, and the soul of music must have been in the player or the county and the conduct of the real- he would have wearied of the tedious process of evoking melody, for this instrument was innocent of key-boards. and each pipe had to be covered with

But later Grecian civilization did much for music. The poetically-in-spired Greek had a soul that was linked with song. Music and poetry are kindred in nature and coexistent No poet ever hymned in lofty numbers whose ear was not attuned to melody. The Egyptian syrinx was transformed by the more poetic Greek into an organ, with its key-board of sweet sounds, a century at least before the dawn of the Christian era. Next came the hydraulic organ, which is supposed by some writers to have been used by, perhaps, nearly all civilized nations about the time of Christ Modern music would find difficulty of utterance through its keys, for it could not be rapidly operated, but still it represented musical advancement, and was the parent of the grandest instruments of today.

It is from the Greeks that the world first received a written system of music. It was a laborious one to acquire, as it had several hundred different characters to represent the various sounds and positions. One can but admire the persistence of those old Greeks, with their inventive genius and their rapid advancement in whatever they undertook. The germs of all modern civilization seemed to be wrapped up in them.

After the Greeks had made music : science, and multiplied instruments to accompany the human voice, the world took a new interest in the art. Harmony and music was no less' pleasing to them than to the gods. They asso ciated it with all their triumphs and their worship, and considered it a study that should not be neglected. Children were everywhere taught it. Its refining tendency was recognized no less by the Greek parent than it is by the music was full of grandeur, of finish, and of repose. Much of it appeared to be the embodiment of all that was nd in their history. It was a fitting mate for the poetry of that age of song; it was the prelude to the grander anthems, whose echoes flood the nineteenth century with their harmony.

Los Angeles is fortunate in being able to listen to some of the best tribute of the second of the less tribute to grander that the age has umphs of musical art that the age has attained. In the American Opera Com-pany we find the consummation of what Jubal in the world's younger days reached toward so eagerly with un-taught hand; what the Egyptian, in his pride of power and pleasure, so longed to attain; what Greece hewed the way for, and with ready ear was listening far adown the line of ages. Let us re-joice in our triumph and be glad. All the ages have been at work to give us what we now enjoy.

A Tempest in a Teapot

The Express last evening occupied considerable of its valuable space in a sensational blow-out about THE TIME and its libel suits, in which it managed to get off a large amount of colicky literature. All we have to say now is that if this paper has heretofore done Col. Boyce or the Gladstone syndicate any injustice it will afford us great pleasure to make the amende honorable THE TIMES can afford to be just, but it cannot be intimidated. Meantime our contemporaries are invited to sail in, and if their interest in the matter will impart any news or life to their columns, it may be a welcome boon to their readers.

The Craze for Foreign News.

The San Francisco Call, in canvassing this topic, apologizes to its readers for the mass of European telegraphic dispatches which it lays before them each day, and admits that it follows a foolish custom to answer public demand. "We regard the mania for minute details of European news a false departure in American journalism," says the Call, "and one which will presently die out." The paper continues:

"It the crazel arises chiefly from the fact that New York, where it originated, is largely a foreign city. New Yorkers, or at least a large portion of them, are more interested in the doings of Englishmen and Frenchmen than they are in the concerns of their own countrymen in Illinois or California. The American cockney is widely prevalent in New York. He loves to hear about dukes and lords, and the ladies of the theater and the ballet whom dukes and lords delight to honor. It is to his taste that the New York papers cater when they fill their columns with details of personal gossip which no leading English or French daily would publish. And perhaps the calculation, for that meridian, is sound. But there is certainly no eraving for such mental pabulum here."

MONTANA REGENT'S victory Louisville, yesterday, over two of Baldwin's crack flyers, bids fair to bring about the recently propose match between Montana Regent and Volante. Baldwin is eager for the match and Morrissey, Montana Regent's owner, seems now quite willing to accommodate him.

Ir is expected that, by the middle of August, the Santa Fé railroad shops and foundry at San Bernardino will be placed in operation. These works will employ about 1500 men, and, of themselves, will make a life-sized boom for our sister Saint up the valley.

Provincial Peculiarities.

[Music and Drama.]

The San Francisco papers will, never rid themselves of a distinctive provincial flavor as long as the public is compelled to read such unmitigated bosh as the slop published in the reports of the opening nights of the National Opera Company. No other paper in the United States with the standing of the Chronicle would publish a string of paragraphs such as the reporters entrusted with that department inflict upon a long-suffering community whenever occasion ofparagraphs such as the reporters entrusted with that department inflict upon a long suffering community whenever occasion offers. Utterly devoid of interest to the general public, and only read with pleasure by the society "would-be's," the column furnishes a laughing-stock to the working corps of every well-regulated daily in the East, and impresses the casual reader with an idea that San Francisco must be what is termed a "jay town." It is beneath the dignity of a journal which presumes to criticise the works of such great composers as Rubenstein and Wagner to incorporate into the report containing such criticisms a lot of paragraphic twaddle about an audience which must, in many instances, be absolutely embarassing to the parties it is designed to please. It is really painful to the reader of average intelligence to witness the cheap methods adopted to obtain society patronage practiced by the leading dailies, and nothing is the more like the "Smithville Scorpion" or the "Bungtown Liberator" than the reports of socials, surprise parties and receptions to which pages are devoted. It may be of interest to a few readers to know that Prof. Tony, the well-known hair-dresser, was delighted with Nero, or that Mr. Barney Gilligan, with his concertina, furnished the music for Birdle McGinnis's surprise party in Tar Flat; but the casual reader fails to become deeply interested in a column of such announcements.

Fighting Drivers.

John Berry, a hackman, and William
Turhune, a driver for the Los Angeles Transfer Company, had some words yester day morning which ended in blows. Berry day morning which ended in blows. Berry was too much for Turhune and knocked him out. He decided to get even in some way, so he swore out a complaint charging Berry with fighting, and that individual was arrested by Deputy Constable Joe Del Valle and taken before Justice Austin. He pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. The case was set for the 18th inst., at 2 o'clock p.m.

Falls Short.

[San Bernardino Gazette.]

The Los Angeles Express evidently don't like Colton people, as in its Monday's issue it goes out of its way to slur and belittle the Colton Base-ball Club. As the young gentlemen composing the Colton club do not profess to be professionals, the venomous shaft of the Express falls harmless.

How They Decline It.

[Sant: Clu: Sentin :1.]

The Tulare county farmers, suffering from the effects of the riparian decision of the Supreme Court, say: "Water we might have had, water we should have had, water we could have, water we must have, and water we will have."

TWO RUNAWAYS.

the Occupants Escape.

As Mr. Slauson's carriage, containing Mrs. Slauson and two other ladies, and the coachman, was being driven down Fort street, on the way to the opera last night, a Chinese wash wagon and horse came tearing down Fifth street, and before the driver could get out of the way the two vehicles came together. The driver was thrown violently to the ground, and the carriage horses dashed on up Fort street. The ladies were unable to do anything, and on Fifth street the horses ran into an electric-light post, and the carriage was smashed to pieces. Mrs. Slauson's clothing was almost forn from her body, but strange to say not a single person was injured, or even scratched. The coachman was slightly bruised. The buggy was a total wreck, and the horses were considerably cut up. The horses were captured by a gentleman on Rose and Fifth streets.

horse attached to a single buggy became frightened at a newspaper which was blown under his nose, and he started off on the dead run. When last seen he was making his way out Main street, carefully dodging other teams. No damage was done.

A STRANGE THEFT.

Contractor O'Shea's Horse and Bugg Confiscated. Rather a strange theft took place early yesterday morning in front of Mr. Hellman's new building, on Sonora street. T. O'Shea, the contractor, drove up to the place, where he has some men working, and left his buggy standing out in front. He had only buggy standing out in front. He had only been gone a few minutes when the men noticed a negro woman, who was slightly under the influence of liquor, step up and climb in the buggy. She was not able to manage the horse, and the men kindly assisted her to get him under way. When Mr. O'Shea came out he was surprised to find that his horse and buggy had disappeared. He asked the men about it, and was almost knocked off of his feet when they told him that they supposed the woman was his servant. He spent the day looking for the woman, but could not find her, and last night the notified the police of what had nappened. At a late hour last night they had not captured her.

Cleveland and Hill.

New York, May 16.—The World's Washington special says: "There is a firm belief here among Cleveland's friends that Gov. Hill will visit Washington soon after the adjournment of the Legislature at Albany. The President has sent Gov. Hill several urgent invitations to visit him at the White House, but it is understood that the Governor has declined on account of the pressure of public business. But the Legislature adjourns the Governor will have a breathing spell, and it is said he has promised to come to Washington early in June, if not before. The President said to a New York politician that he is anxious to have Gov. Hill come here and spend a few days as his guest, as he believes that a friendly call from Mr. Hill will go further to disabuse the public mind of any rivalry between the two than anything that could be done."

How the British Government is India Appropriated a Great Treasure —Editor O'Brien Elected to Parliament.

LONDON, May 16.—[By Cable and the Associated Press.] The Financial Secretary of India has advised the government of the discovery of an immense amount of treasure, estimated at over $25,000,000, discovery of an immense amount of treasure, estimated at over $25,000,000, which had been secreted in the palace of Gwalior by the late Maharajah. The treasure had been sunk in pits. The secret was entrusted to a few confidential servants. The Secretary was present when the treasure was unearthed. After removing the earth to a depth of six feet the workmen revealed great flagstones. Beneath these were several pits filled with silver, chiefly freshly-coined rupees. In each pit was a plate recording the amount of treasure and the names of the officials who assisted in secreting it. The Indian government has taken the hoard as a loan from the young Maharajah. The native papers protest, against this action. They say that had the Maharajah been an adult instead of under a regency controlled by the government, he would have never invested his whole wealth in Indian securities. The question is to be raised in Parliament whether the "investment" be not another name for seizure.

By Telegraph to The Times.

TULARE, May 16.—[By the Associated Press.] The Fowler Ditch Company and Centerville and Kingsburg Company appeared before the Superior Court of Tulare county today in the case of Lillis et al., upon citation to show cause why they should not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court for diverting water from Kings River, in violation of the injunction heretofore issued by the court. The canal companies filed answers, showing that the large supply of water in Kings River is sufficient to fill the canals and to supply all riparians, and the water in Kings River is sumcient to hit the camals and to supply all riparians, and the court held that, upon such showing, no in-jury would result to Lillis. Final de-termination of the matter was postponed one week, to take testimony as to the actua amount of water flowing in the river.

Two Prisoners Escape from the San Bernardino County Cage. SAN BERNARDINO, May 16.—[By the As-SAN BERNARDINO, May 16.—[By the Associated Press.] Yesterday evening, about 4 o'clock, Hugh McLane, of San Francisco, and John Cannon, confined in the County Jail on charges of burglary, made their escape by sawing off an iron bar half an inch thick and two and one-half inches in width, which admitted them into the antercest. room, the walls of which were twenty-eight inches thick. They next knocked a hole inches thick. They next knocked a hole through this large enough to crawl through letting them in under the stairway of the courthouse, where a trap door set them at liberty. The job was well planned and was intended for a general delivery. The only thing preventing it was that the time for locking the prisoners in their cells arrived, when the plot was discovered just in time to prevent Callanan, the murderer sentenced for life, from escaping. It was evident that the whole thing was planned by parties on the outside, and Sheriff Cole has offered a reward for their capture.

SANTA ANA, May 16.—From San Juan Capistrano southward the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's surveyors have run two lines, one a few miles along the beach, and the other to the southeast. On account of the other to the southeast. On account of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé holding the vantage grounds, and of the impracticability of a line along the ocean beach, there being high and abrupt cliffs and bluffs from 100 to 300 feet in height and thirty feet in in width, it looks as if the line would strike through the interior, farther south. After five months' surveys between here, and San Juan Capistrano, the surveyors left for other points of work.

A PROSPECTOR UNBOSOME HIMSELY ABOUT THE CAMP. CHAMPION MINE (Piru Mining Dis-CHAMPION MINE (Piru Mining District, Ventura County, Cal.), May 6.—
[Correspondence of The Times.] I write this letter for several reasons—to fulfill my promise to answer, through your paper, the many letters I am receiving from old prospecting and mining men all over this coast, and to the feats into at they are Having been prospecting in the Piru mining district for three years. I believe it is a good mineral-bearing district; that there will be millions of dolars. trict; that there will be millions of dollars of the precious metals taken out of the many quartz lodes that crop out for miles in every direction. In over thirty years' prospecting I have not found any mining camp that shows better surface indications than can be found here, yet there are no mills to work the ores. If there were a small custom mill here, so that those who have good pay ore on the surface could get it worked, it would be a good thing for us miners. We then could get money to open up our prospects, which, I believe, will prove to be good paying mines. I think, from what I can learn, that such a mill will be built this summer.

what I can learn, that such a mill will be built this summer.

To my many mining friends I will say: If you want to prospect, or buy a prospect, come up here; but if you want work, don't come here but if you want work, don't come here bet. There is no one here able to hire men, and there are no mines being worked, except by the owners, who are too poor to hire help. There is no new mining camp in the Pine district, and all the blowing done by florid writers only hurts the camp, and those who come up here and go down to what they call Lexiton get so disgusted that they leave the next day. The new mines are not new, however, having been found years ago, and owned by other parties. There are few good prospectors here. The most of the men we have are bean-pullers and pumpkin-rollers.

I read in the Los Angeles Times that there were 250 men in this district last there were 250 men in this district last winter, when the fact is there were not twenty all told. I also read that this is on the Calico belt, when it is not, and has no more to do with the Calico mines than the great Comstock of Navade.

Neither is the Cedar mining district north of this, but southeast, and fifty or sixty miles away. Your correspond-ent "B." had better ge and look over ent "B." had better ge and look over his geography again.

This mining camp is fifteen miles west of Gorman's Station and on the west side of the Torazier Mountain.

Gorman's Station is our postoffice. The mail comes but once a week, leaving Lancaster on the Southern Pacific Railroad every Saturday morning, and arrives at Gorman's Station the following Sunday at 4 nm. From there you arrives at Gorman's Station the following Sunday at 4 p.m. From there you have to hire a team or walk.

There is a store at the junction of Lockwood and Piru creeks, where Mr. Plores has provisions and wines.

Through the kindness of Mr. Cuddy, who is an old-timer in this district, we contain a realist every Sunday exercise. get our mails every Sunday evening at his rancho, as he sends some of his soms to Gorman's Station every Sun-day, which is a great accommodation day, which is a great accommodation to us miners. There are several other things I would like to mention, but as this letter is altogether too long, I will stop for this time. Yours truly, ISAAC HAYLOCK.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Alameda Street and the Railroad.
Los Angeles, May 16.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I notice that some of our flery, untamed citizens propose that the Southern Pacific be empelled to remove its tracks from Alameda street to the river. Now why did they not say to Main or Spring, or Fort or Figueroa streets? The legal hase involved and the ability of the City Council to order such removal to phase involved and the ability of the City Council to order such removal to any of these places is just the same. Several months since the Council granted to the Atchison. Topeka and Santa F6, or their representatives, all city lands lying between First street and the southern boundary, and that company and private individuals now own every inch of find right up to the official 300-foot channel, and the levee and roadbed will soon be completed. How, then, can the Southern Pacific get in along the river without buying right-of-way of individvals, or of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa F6 people, if that were possible?

There is just one little suggestion I would like to make to our Alameda friends, provided their negotiations with the Southern Pacific authorities prove fruitless. Why not abandon Alameda (below Georgia) as a street attogether, leaving to the railroad twenty-five or fifty feet, or sufficient for a double track, and giving the balance to properties now facing upon the street? Then upon either side, at a distance of 150 feet from the roadbed, lay out parallel avenues at least eighty feet wide to the southern city limits; thus giving each property-owner two frontages instead of one, and they upon safe and beautiful streets. Then the rear of each lot would abut upon the railroad and not the front, and they would, in my opinion, be vastly the gainers thereby.

A. F. KERCHEVAL.

As to Sewerage.

Los Angeles, May 16.—[To the Editor of The Times.] Mr. "R. A. W." attempted in the last issue of The Times to give the public some pointers on sewerage. Had the gentleman not on sewerage. Had the gentleman not connected Mr. Rosewater's name with his contribution the article would hardly be worth noticing, for it shows too clearly that Mr. "R. A. W." is not very much of a specialist on the sewerage question. Mr. "R. A. W." however, intimates that Mr. Rosewater in his designs makes no provision for the ventilation of sewers. Mr. "R. A. W." evidently knows nothing whatever about Mr. Rosewater's method of sewering, nor does he seem to know anything about the detail construction of sewers. Mr. Rosewater's designs call for a most ample ventilation, as Mr. "B. A. W." will find if he reads Mr. Rosewater's annual report of the engineering department of the city of Omaha.

Mr. "R A W "thinky nine inch prince."

Mr. "R. A. W." thinks nine-inch pipe is better than eight-inch pipe, because it carries more sewage under the same

This, however, is not the reason why Mr. Rosewater advocates a minimum size of eight inches for branch pipe, because in most cases a six-inch pipe, if not laid for too great a distance, will in our town carry more sewage than the connections will ever yield. It is the liability of stoppages that makes it advisable to leave six-inch pipes out of a system of sewers.

Further on Mr. "Raw" states that the separate system has the disadvantage of being combined with too much plumbing. This shows clearly that Mr. "Raw"s" study of the different sewerage systems must be very limited, for the plumbing in a separate system is exactly the same as in the combined or any other system.

At any rate, Mr. "R. A. W." showed a good will for the public, and although the public does not benefit anything from the communication directly, it may indirectly, and the public should never forget Mr. "R. A. W." for that.

WILLIAMSON-M'MENAMY.

A Marriage Which United California and Nebraska.

| Omaha Bee. |
| A quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. McMenamy, on Capitol avenue. The parties most interested were their daughter, Miss Carrie McMenamy, and Mr. George W. Willnamson, of Los Angeles, Cal. At precisely 3 o'clock the ceremony was performed by Rev. T. M. House, of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends. The natural charms of the bride were enhanced by a lovely combination toilet of pink and Nilegreen silk. The effect of this was heightened by the sparkle of a magnificent cluster of diamonds at the throat—a gift from the groom.

After the nuptial knot had been securely tied, a wedding supper was served, which was accorded full justice by all who sat down to it. The young couple then left on the evening Burlington train for the East. They will visit Chicago, New York and other eastern cities, returning to Omaha in about three weeks, and going thence to their future home in California. They will be accompanied by the good wishes and congratulations of hosts of friends. The bride is an accomplished young lady, well known in Omaha society, who has won many friends and admirers during her residence in this city. The fortunate groom is a popular business man, prominent in the commercial circles of Los Angeles. All who know them will join in wishing them godspeed on their journey through life together.

A large table in the parlor was covered with verious substantial tokens of exteens.

HYDE PARK!

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acre property, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a giance as to the difficulty of finding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and smooth, riel lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This splendid townsite is located on the line of the California Central, of the A., T. & S. F. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Ballona, and is distant 7½ miles from the center of the city; a midway town be tween the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 60x18 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $100 each; $40 cash balance $10 per month, without interest. Such terms give the present purchasers a good op portunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor an railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre villa lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

At.8 o'clock last night a Mrs. Murray, who resides on Los Angeles street, visited the police office and said she wanted an officer to go and help her to find her 14-year-old daughter, who had been missing since Sunday morning. The girl left home to go out in the country to visit some friends of her mother, but instead of doing that she had taken up with a girl named Maud Miller, of about her own age, who has been in the habit of running away from home on every occasion for some time past. Mrs. Murray was almost distracted with grief, and said she would not have her daughter with that Miller girl for anything in the world. When questioned as to how she knew that her daughter was with the Miller girl, she said she had been informed by a girl who saw them at Bowman's house, on New High street, about 5 o'clock last evening. She believed they were at the house with young Jack Bowman, as they were seen with him at that time. Officer Dalton was detailed to look the matter up, and in company with the mother, the young girl who gave the information and a'. Thmss reporter, he started out. When the party reached Bowman's they were informed that the two girls were not there, and had not been. The officer looked through the house, as the girl with the most of the was in the house, as the girl with the most of the was in the house, as the girl with the most of the was and the proper Main street. The party went to that place and called the landady, who at first denied that any such people had secured a room in her house at the time when the boy said he saw Jack and the girls go in. On being closely questioned, she admitted that her daughter had rented them a room, thinking they were moments of the open and said the went and questioned her daughter, and, in a little while, came back and informed the door, but she said after a few seconds 'talk that she would open it if they would give them time to dress. She finally opened the door, and when the light was turned up Jack Bowman a tall youth, who is probably it? years old, was f

A BIG LAND DEAL.

A Thousand-acre Buy at San Fer-nando for a Town.

Of late there has been a sudden turn of attention to the San Fernando Valley and attention to the San Fermando Valley and the beautiful country lying in that direction. The Times has already noted—exclusively in each case—the purchase by a strong Los Angeles syndicate of the great George K. Porter rancho of 18,000 acres, at San Fer-nando, for $524,000; the action of the trustees in turning Senator Maclay's munifcent gift of $150,000 to the University of Southern California into 1000 acres at San Fernando; and the purchase of the 97,000-acre Simi rancho, beyond San Fernando, by another Los Angeles syndicate for $75,000. All this is besides the big new land projects of Providencia and Burbank, both in the San Fernando Valley. These are sufficient tokens that there is a tremendous "boom" on in that section—or, to speak more accurately, that the attention of capital has at last been turned to the natural and acquired advantages of one of the choicest regions in the whole of Southern California. For a couple of weeks a representative of The Times has been in possession of the main facts in relation to another big deal in San Fernando lands; and they have been withheld simply lest their premature publication might impede unfinished negotiations. The transaction was completed yesterday, however, and the facts are herewith presented.

For a little over thirty days Jewett Allin, a prominent capitalist of Chattanooga, Tenn., has been working up a syndicate to buy a large tract in the San Fernando Valley and put a town there. The company has been organized, and yesterday completed the purchase, from Judge R. M. Widney and his associates, of 1000 acres in the Maclay ranch for $150,000. The tract lies eightenniles northwest of this city, and just this side of the raliroad, and runs clear back to the foothills. All travelers will remember that beautiful slope. It lies in with the 1000 acres of the University of Southern California, the forty-acre tracts belonging, alternately, to the University and to the new company; and the whole 3000 acres will be handled as one tract.

The company has a capital stock of $150,000, in 1560 shares of $100 each. All are subscribed, as follows: Jewett Allin, 750 shares; R. A. Hoyt, 120 shares; Dr. E. Pinney, 120 shares; G. W. Hoyt, 60 shares; Dr. E. Pinney, 120 shares; G. W. Hoyt, 60 shares; Dr. E. Pinney, 120 shares; G. W. Hoyt, 60 shares; Dr. E. Pinney, 120 shares; G. W. Hoyt, 60 shares; Dr. E. Pi cent gift of $150,000 to the University of Southern California into 1000 acres at San o shares; and Mr. Griswold, of nando, 15 shares.

The company will sell $100,000 to $150,000 worth of the land, and put the money right back into improvements. A beautiful tract of 180 acres has been selected as a townsite, and the work of grading streets and pioing water over the whole 2000 acres will begin at once. The company will put up, at its own expense, a large number of dwellings and other buildings, ranging in price from $2000 to $10,000. They do not feel like asking an outsider to come and buy a town lot among nothing but sage-brush and jack-rabbits; they prefer to say to him not "Here to'll be a town"—and they will put the town there themselves. Another long-sighted measure, which the company has adopted, is a new deal here. They will not sell to any one who will not agree either to improve the land himself, or let some one else do so. In other words, the company reserves the right to cultivate every foot which the owners do not improve. The immediate improvements to be made by the company will probably take till the middle of August.

Jewett Allin, who has had fifteen years experience in town-building in Missouri and Eastern Tennessee, leaves this morning for Chattanooga. He will return in a few weeks, bringing his own, and probably several other families.

THE SIMI.

List of the Purchasers of That 97,-000 Acres.

THE TIMES gave exclusive information of THE TIMES gave exclusive information of the purchase of the 97,000-acre Simi rancho, lying partly in this and partly in Ventura county, for $575,000. The syndicate which has bought this enormous tract and will cut it up into small farms at low prices is composed as follows: Hon. T. R. Bard, of Hueneme; Brig.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U.S.A., with headquarters in Los Angeles; Major A. S. Kimball, U.S.A., chief quartermaster of this department; Dan McFarland, L. T. Garnsey, John B. Baskin, T. W. T. Richards, E. E. Hall, Charles E. Forrester, E. A. Forrester. These gentlemen have the habit of success, and their plan to turn the great rancho into a large number of productive farms is of the sort that should and will succeed here.

There is a famous kiss in the "Beggar's Opera." It was given by Macbeth to Jenny Diver, and the unpleasant effect which is produced on him may be judged from the sarcastic remark: "One may know by your kiss that your gin is excellent."

Petruchio gave his bride a kiss of enormous calibre. We are told that he "kissed her lips with such a clamorous smack, that at the parting all the church echoed."

echoed."

The kiss given by the Dutchess of Devonshire to a butcher, for his vote, has almost a world-wide reputation. The butcher was bold and ingenious enough to demand a kiss as the price of his vote. It was gracefully given, and the kissee became known as the butcher Steele, who kissed the Dutchess. He thus increased his trade and gained historic fame. I should like to know the opinion of the Duchess as to the difference in the flavor of the Duke's kiss and a butcher's.

a butcher's.

It is related that Voltaire was once kissed in a theater by the beautiful Countess de Villars. The pirties, in their enthusiasm for the great writer, compelled her to give him the salute.

Almost every one has heard of the first kiss given by Dominie Brown to his sweetheart Janet, after a courtship of savan years.

of seven years.

One evening as they sat together in the customary solemn silence Mr. Brown summoned courage and said: "We have been acquainted now for seven years, and I've no'er gotten a kiss yet. D'ye think I might tak' yan, by bonnie girl?"

yet. D'ye think I might tak' yan, by bonnie girl?"
"Just as you like, John; only be becoming wi' it."
"Surely, Janet, we'll ask a blessing. For what we are about to receive, Lord make us truly thankful."
The kiss was taken, and the worthy divine, overpowered by the blissful senation, rapturously exclaimed: "O, Janet, it is gude. We'll return thanks."
Six months afterwards they were married.

married.

Every one remembers the famous kiss imprinted by Mr. Bumble on the "chaste nose" of Mrs. Corney, and still more famous kiss applied to the lips of Mary, the pretty housemaid, by Sam Weller. The latter event is thus amusingly described in "Pickwick":

"Get your hat, Sam," said Mr. Pickwick.

wick.
"It's below stairs, sir," said Sam, and he ran down after it.

Now there was nobody in the kitcher Now there was nobody in the kitchen but the pretty housemaid, and as Sam's hat was mislaid he had to look for it, and the pretty housemaid lighted him. They had to look all over the place for the hat. The pretty housemaid, in her anxiety to find it, went down on her knees, and turned over all the things that were heaped together in a little corner by the door. It was an awkward corner. You couldn't get at it without shutting the door first.

shutting the door first.

"Here it is," said the pretty house-maid; "this is it, ain't it?".

"Let me look," said Sam.

The pretty housemaid had stood the candle on the floor. As it gave a very dim light Sam was obliged to go down on his knees before he could see whether it really was his own hat or not. It was a remarkably small corner, and so —it was nobody's fault but the man's who built the house—Sam and the pretty housemaid were necessarily very ose together.

"Yes, this is it," said Sam. "Goodby!"
"Good-by," said the pretty housemaid.

"Good-by," said Sam; and as he said it he dropped the hat that had cost so much trouble in looking for.

"How awkward you are," said the pretty housemaid. "You'll lose it again if you don't take care."

So just to prevent his losing it again she put it on for him. Whether it was that the pretty housemaid's face looked prettier still when it was raised toward sam's, or whether it was the accidental consequence of their being so near to nce of their being so near to this day; but Sam kissed her.

"You don't mean to say you did that on purpose?" said the pretty housemaid, blushing

"No, I didn't then," said Sam, "but I will now." So he kissed her again.
"Sam!" said Mr. Pickwick, calling over the banisters.

'Coming, sir," replied Sam, running up-stairs. "How long you have been?" said Mr.

Pickwick.

"There was something behind the door which prevented our getting it open for everso long, sir," replied Sam.

And this was the first passage of Mr. Weller's first love.—Tid-Bits.

Women Customers.

Women Customers." replied a saleswoman in a dry-goods store. She had been asked plumply whether she preferred waiting on men, and this was her plump answer.

"Why do you prefer men" "Because they know what they want, and do not care to keep you standing an hoar while they fumble over and rumple up the goods on the counter. Why, only to-day I was showing a lady black stockings. Of course, they were all the same size and quality, yet she dragged every pair out of that box and then wanted to see more. I handed down two more boxes just like this one, and then asked if we had any more. I told her no, and then she said I might wrap up one pair for her. The lady next to me made nine different sales to gentlemen while I was fooling with the one woman, I am going to try to get a place in a hardware-store, or some place where women do not have to deal with women."— Pittsburg Dispatch.

When I had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of Baron Nicolas Kaulbars he was only a simple colonel and chief of the staff of one of the army corps at St. Petersburg. That was in the lifetime of the late czar, and the baron's rise has been rapid since the present emperor came to the throne. Baron Kaulbars was then a tall man, with fairly broad shoulders, but with a slight stoop and very little flesh on his bones. His voice is low and soft and his manner extremely courteous, though alight stoop and very little fiesh on his bones. His voice is low and soft and his manner extremely courteous, though it always gives one the idea of being put on, and in speaking of weak nationalities or to their representatives his tone is generally slighting and contemptuous. He is a capital companion, for he speaks English, French and German with equal facility, and has an immense store of odds and ends of knowledge, which he makes use of without any parade, and with a frank boyishness that is very winning. He can hardly be called a trueborn Russian, for on the father's side he is a Finn, and his immediate female ancestors were German and English. He has a strong sense of humor, and is fond of stringing together French rhymes, an occupation which he describes as tres sympathique. As an instance, we were once climbing a mountain with several companions, among them a young Russian licutenant of the army of the Balkans, and this licutenant, finding the July sun too much for him, was obliged to halt and give up the ascent. About half way up we stopped for a short rest, and Baron Kaulbars amused himself by extemporizing a poem on our expedition, out got no further than the couplet:

La pauve Khadonshaevitch par sess chaleurs accale

A la fin ne pouvait plus marcher.

On the same excursion we caught a curious beetle of considerable size in the long grass; and as the baron wishthe long grass; and as the baron wished to preserve it alive, for he was an enthusiastic naturalist, we made a paper box out of some old letters, and the baron actually carried the unhappy specimen in his pocket to the top of the mountain and down again. Of course I am only speaking of him as a casual acquaintance, never having any official intercourse with him, but certainly as a friend he was very pleasant and entertaining, though the Bulgarian government would in all probability give a very different account of him. Still, from his tone of voice in giving orders to his subordinates I should imagine that he could be sufficiently brutal and overbearing should occasion offer.—

The Mother of a Good Governor.

The mother of ex-Governor Murray of Utah was a remarkable woman. Her first husband was the brother of the noble and eloquent John J. Crittenden, and one of her sons was the recent governor of Missouri. "When I first saw ernor of Missouri. "When I first saw Mrs. Murray," says a writer in the New York Graphic, "it was in her own beautiful Kentucky home on the Ohio river. I think I never saw a more magnificent looking couple than Colonel and Mrs. Murray. The latter was tall and stately, almost statuesque in her beauty. She was a veritable grand dame, but her dignity was tempered with the sweetest gentleness. She was, moreover, a woman of great intellect with the sweetest gentleness. She was, moreover, a woman of great intellect and character. Another son by her first marriage was a brilliant young fellow, brave and daring as a knight of old, who sacrificed himself years ago on a fillbustering expedition to Cuba, that maelstrom that swallowed up so many bright and unselfish, misguided souls of the Southern chivalry. Young Crittenden, in company with other leaders of the expedition, was captured and sentenced to death. One by one, at surrise, his comrades stood before a line of Cuban rifles, and at the order knelt and received in their ill-fated breasts a volley of Cuban bullets. When Crittenley of Cuban bullets. When Crittenden's turn came, he refused to kneel, saying, 'A Kentuckian kneels to none but his God,' and despite threats, oaths and orders, he received the fatal shots erect and motionless. Years ago the favorite song in drawing-rooms through. favorite song in drawing-rooms through-out Kentucky and the South was a pathetic ballad founded on these last words and bearing on the title page a picture of this dauntless young spirit who had the courage of his convictions. Mrs. Murray was revered and honored by all who knew her."

A Discouraged Shah.

The Mery correspondent of the Jour-nal des Debats writes: "Everybody in Persia admits that the shah is animated rank des Debats writes: "Everybody in Persia admits that the shah is animated by the best intentions, and that he would restore to his country its ancient splendors; but at the same time everybody sees that his good intentions are never carried out, and that no sovereign ever met with less support. Such is the discouragement of the shah that he has completely given up control of the state, just as he allows the fortified walls surrounding his residence to crumble and fall into the ditches. During our sojourn in Teheran we witnessed the curious spectacle of the minister of fine arts taking possession of one of the outbuildings of the palace, and declaring that he would not leave until the salary due him was paid. The shah, who loves a good joke has the obstinate vizier well taken care of, and asks him every time he meets him on his walks whether he is satisfied with the cuisine. The vizier declares that it is excellent, and awears that he will end his days near the person of his majesty. His majesty laughs, thanks him, and proceeds on his walk. Would to heaven that this comedy may not end in tragedy! This is a fair example of the condition of things in general. The wages of the soldiers are a source of income to the colonels, who send three-fourths of the men on furlough and pocket their wages. The lower officers allow the soldiers to practice a profession on condition that they divide the proceeds with them. Many a soldier who guards in the evening the door of the palace in the morning sold lettuce in the streets, or patched slippers to place and declaring the door of the streets, or patched slippers to place in the streets of the same and the same and
